Serial No.

The letter written by the Chief Justice aims at the apportionment of the vacancies in the Judicial Department as one-fourth General and three-fourths Special. The Hon'ble the Chief Justice has stated in his letter that "In a State, in fact in every Province in India which is peopled by different communities and where, by age long tradition, caste and relegious differences unconciously influence men in power to deny equity and fairplay to everyone irrespective of caste or creed. The principle of communal representation is not only the just but the only principle to ensure proper administration of any State based on justice". I do not agree to the above views of the Chief Justice as the men in power till now have never been influenced either conciously or unconciously by such considerations, but there is a possibility that some men in power in future may be guided by such considerations, and equity and fairplay may be denied to those who are in minority and powerless.

It should have been accepted by all, if this block allotment of three-fourths number of vacancies for the Non-Brahmins had been made a few years back. when the differences among the various communities in the Non-Brahmin group were not accentuated but now it is to be regreted that there are divergent interests, each community putting forward its own claims and pleas for gaining as much share as possible for itself. This has lead to misunderstanding among the various communities especially between Muslims and other major communities. The Muslims have been repeatedly urging that their claims should not be mixed with those of other communities and that their share in the service may be assigned separately to them. It is in the best interests of all these communities concerned that the proportion of each is fixed once for all as in Madras and other Provinces. It is best to adopt the Madras Service Rules and introduce them here in order to ensure proper administration of the State based on justice." According to the Madras Subordinate Judicial Service Rules, the Muslims are entitled to two places out of every 12. The same principle may be adopted here and the proportion to ~~which~~ Muslims and other minor communities such as Christians and Depressed Classes, is settled once for all. I may point out that while making allotments for each community, population is not the only principle to be adopted. The cultural and economic condition of each community and its importance will have to be taken into account while fixing its proportion.

This principle was discussed by a Committee appointed by the Government when Mr. A.C. Gupta was Public Service Commissioner. This Committee agreed that it is best under the existing circumstances to adopt the rotation system of Madras and accordingly sent up its recommendations to the Government. This question is still pending before the Government and has to be decided. I may only say the earlier this question is decided the better it is for the State.

Serial No.

Each community will defenitely know where it stands and what its proportion will be in the service. This will put an end to all unhealthy discussions in future.

the proposal of the High Court may be accepted. The present composition of the cadre in question, which is as indicated below justifies the recommendation —

Brahmin	— 15
Muslim	— 4
Lingayat	— 5
Vysya	— 3
Jain	— 3
Mudaliar	— 2

The issue raised, regarding the specific allotment of vacancies to certain communities has no direct bearing on the question under consideration. What is proposed by the High Court is that the proportion of vacancies in the Munsiffs' cadre, available for recruitment exclusively of the members of the backward communities may be fixed at 3 and 4, as was the case some years ago. If there is not much justification for the view expressed by the Chief Justice that certain factors may have contributed in the past to deny equal opportunities to all the communities to secure their share of representation, there is much less preparation for the Reservation made that "there is a possibility that some men in power in future may be guided by such considerations & equity & fair-play may be denied to those who are in a minority & powerless."

Govt are committed to the policy of making the services as representative as possible, & ensuring equitable distribution of appointments among the several classes & communities' interests. To implement this policy, definite rules have been framed & these are working as satisfactorily as possible. No attempt has, however, been made so far to allot specific percentage & vacancies to any particular community. Some suggestions in this direction had no doubt been made by a Committee presided over by Mr Gupta but after a careful consideration of the several issues involved, it was felt that to apportion appointments by communities would not only be inexpedient but unworkable as a practical proposition. No change has therefore been made in the existing rules but to meet the legitimate & reasonable claims of unrepresented or inadequately represented communities, due consideration is being given to the members of such communities in the preparation of the lists of assignment to the several units.

The general rule of recruitment now in operation in the State, applies only to subordinate & non-gazetted service. They have not so far been considered to apply to gazetted posts. Vacancies in the latter cadre, available for direct recruitment, are filled up on general considerations, taking into account the qualifications of the candidates available, the composition of the service in question & the need for making it as representative as possible. The representation of the Muslims in the Class I cadre is about 10 per cent & this cannot be stated to be low or inadequate. In any case, there seems to be no justification to allot any specific percentage of vacancies to the Communities. The statistics of representation furnished earlier in the note will show convincingly that, if at all, some other Communities may have some grievance in this respect & not the Muslim Community.

The Muslim Community is included in the category of backward classes & it has by no means suffered on this account; on the other hand, it has fared very well. As against a population of 6 per cent, the representation of the Community, taking the Service as a whole is 11·50 per cent. which is nearly double.

It is therefore not surprising that certain communities should feel that the Muslims have secured more than what is due to them, & that, at their expense, their share has been reduced to the extent other communities have secured higher proportion & representation. I quite concede that population is not the only criterion to be taken into consideration in regulating the distribution of appointments & that other relevant factors may have to be given due weight. A Sub-Committee of the Standing Advisory Committee of Recruitment has made some proposals in this connection which are before the latter Committee. If Govt should decide later that any assignment of vacancies to the several communities is necessary or desirable in public interest, they could be relied upon to make suitable & equitable assignments, taking all relevant factors into consideration. It is neither expedient nor desirable to make such assignments in favour of any one or two communities only. This will not only give scope for much heart-burning & discontent but create considerable opposition & an atmosphere, not congenial to good relationship & harmonious feeling in the Country.

[illegible] agree with the opinion expressed by Justice Bhagwati in his recommendation for elimination of the proportional representation. It is necessary that the [illegible] must be adequately represented and in a way that the electorate would be confident in the administration of the State. The need for social justice and equality and representation is outstanding challenge for any statement that is made in power have never been guided by considerations, solely consciously or unconsciously to deny equity and fairplay to everyone irrespective of caste or creed. This possible in future also, men in power might be guided by such influences despite all attempts to the opposite.

Therefore for the purpose of the responsibilities and responsibilities of the [illegible] it is very necessary that as a system of representation has to be evolved, so as to ensure adequate and just representation to all communities and [illegible] consideration, that composition of State Services.

Shall Board have Non-Brahmins & one Brahmin. The reservation of appoi nted to one particular County of Brahmins is not justified from any consideration as has been pointed in my note dated 13.10.62 & Executive Order as October 1929 the Rule contempla ting appointment of four vacancies
the Members of the Non-Brahmi and Adi-Dravida has been left with Government to Brahmins.
If it was justified, in consonance
with the rule adopted as modifi ed in the year 1928 when it was said that out of 4 vacancies, 3
should go to Non-Brahmins
and the 4th to the best available candidates which means that any person of any community who happ ens to be the best available would get it and not disentitle a Brahmin candidate. Even this modifica tion in the rules created a big public agitation both in the Legislature and in the country
But somehow the reservation of one vacancy out of 3 has been effected. In this respect

[illegible] recommendation [illegible] does not make this point clear & [illegible] fails to convey legitimate requirements [illegible] community. Shall - [illegible] say that in a [illegible] where men in authority, acting consciously or unconsciously have allowed the rule to be enforced by the deprivation of the equal representation [illegible] thus acquiring control. Out [illegible] appointments in the municipal civil service [illegible] the appointments in the judiciary there are 15 Brahmins which becomes more than 1/3 for a population [illegible] 5%. Hence I would propose that out of [illegible] six appointments five should be reserved for backward classes and one should be reserved for Muslims. This is quite a moderate and this ratio may continue until definite proportions are fixed for representation of various communities in the State Services.

The rate of proportion of one General appointment to three Special appointments now applies only to appointments dealt with by the Central Recruitment Board. In regard to Gazetted appointments the principle of providing equal opportunities to all communities is kept in view though not in an arithmetical proportion.

There are one or two matters about which there is loose thinking. It is assumed by some that each community should get appointments in proportion to its numerical strength. I am not aware that such a principle has been laid down or accepted by Government.

The present practice of dividing the candidat into two classes, Brahmin and Non-Brahmin is not satisfatory. Communities like the Indian Christians the Depressed Classes and the Mohammadans have to be treated separately as their interests may not receive adequate consideration if they are merged in a big group like the Non-Brahmin or the Backward Class group. As far as possible each community should have a certain share and must know what that share is. The present classification is definite so far as what one community shall be limited to. In view of these facts. I am in favour of our adopting the Madras system of classification and rotation.

I agree with the Minister for Public Works Department in regard to what the learned Chief Justice has said about men in power denying equity and fair-play to communities other than their own, and their unconscious bias in favour of members of their own own communities. Such a state of affairs does not exist in our State. In places where it does exist, it is an indication of inability, due to weakness of the Government to enforce its policy.

KLL

I have no objection to the proportion suggested by the High Court being tried as an interim measure if that is what the High Court now considers just. It may be observed that the formula considered fair by the Chief Court in 1919, as well as the proportion recommended by the present Chief Justice's learned predecessor, were different.

The vexed question of communal representation has not been made more easy to approach or to solve by the passions and prejudices that have unfortunately surrounded it.

At a time when the interests of the country and the world demand that divisions of community and and even of colour and race should be broken down and be replaced by a healthy nationalism and world-citizenship, it has earnestly to be considered whether the adoption or continuation of a principle based on division and cleavage rather than on unity would help in bringing about that unity and harmony so devoutly to be wished. It is also for serious reflection whether the steps taken in pursuit of the principle of communal representation during the past quarter of a century, following the recommendations of the Miller Committee Report, have brought about that communal concord and that increased confidence in the Administration that were hoped for, or whether they have only served to accentuate communal and sub-communal wrangles and strengthened the forces of disintegration.

I realize this is thorny and controversial ground. But I would plead in all sincerity that if our aim is to destroy the internal barriers that we have, inherited or created and to become a united people and nation, it is urgent that we should consider deeply and with detachment, whether the policy pursued is the right one, and has led us any nearer the goal of unity and nationhood, or made for the efficiency and fair name of the administration.

The Dewan was kind enough to send this file to me soon after I came over here with an intimation that he would like to talk it over with me. I have carefully gone through the minutes of five ministers (two of them have since vacated their charges) and I do not think I need swell the note with further remarks. So far as I can make out, four views have been expressed so far (1) retention of status quo, 2:1 (2) adoption of the ratio suggested by the High Court 3:1 (3) adoption of the Madras system of rotation, 2 members (4) varying the ratio to 5:1. The subject is best discussed at a meeting of the Council, while so doing avoid the Communal Complexities as much as possible consistent with justice to all Communities

Final Note by the Minister for Revenue and Law

Subject— Recruitment of Munsiffs.

In Government letter No.180/Cts.28-29-24 dated 16th October 1929, the High Court (then Chief Court) was requested to observe the principle of allotting three out of every four vacancies to candidates of the backward communities, in nominating candidates thereafter for appointment as Munsiffs. In November 1935, the then Chief Justice enquired whether, in view of the fact that the strength of non-Brahmins in the cadre of Munsiffs had reached 50 per cent, the proportion of two non-Brahmins to one Brahmin might be observed in respect of appointments to be made thereafter. Government agreed to the said proposal.

The question of modifying the above decision came up for discussion in Council in November 1942 in connection with the selection of fresh candidates for appointment as Munsiffs, and in accordance with the resolution then recorded by the Council, the views of the High Court were invited in regard to the revival of the old arrangement of giving three out of every four vacancies to candidates of the backward communities. The opinion of the High Court was sent to Government in a letter dated 10th January 1944 of the Chief Justice, and for reasons explained therein the High Court are now in favour of restoration of the old rule that out of every four appointments three should be non-Brahmins.

The case was circulated to the Ministers of Council and from the minutes recorded in the file, it is seen that different views have been expressed in regard to the proportions that might be adopted in respect of communal representation. A suggestion has also been made that the Madras system of fixing a definite proportion for each of the communities and making appointments by rotation be adopted.

F.N. – contn.)

The question was also discussed at more than one meeting of the Council, and finally the following opinion was recorded at a meeting held on 24th May 1945 :-

> " With regard to recruitment of Munsiffs, the desirability of giving representation to all communities with due regard to efficiency of candidates may be kept in view."

The Council considered that it was unnecessary to lay down any specific proportions in this connection and that it might be left to the High Court to give due effect to the general policy indicated in the Council Resolution. The chief point about this resolution is its elasticity as it gives wide scope to the High Court.

The recommendation of the Council is submitted to His Highness for his gracious approval.

MINISTER FOR REVENUE & LAW.

30th May 1945.

Submitted to His Highness.

I submit herewith a Final Note by the Minister for Revenue and Law on the subject of recruitment of Munsiffs for the gracious approval of His Highness. The Council Resolution does not, in my view, preclude the High Court from adopting at its discretion a working rule of the nature proposed by the Chief Justice, viz., that out of every four vacancies, three may be filled by the appointment of non-Brahmin candidates. If His Highness graciously permits, the Chief Justice will be informed accordingly.

N O T E.

In their letter No.180/Cts.28-29-24 dated 16th October 1929, Government requested the High Court (the then the Chief Court) that nominations of candidates for being appointed as Munsiffs might be made on the principle of giving three out of every four facancies to candidates of the Backward communities. This principle was subsequently modified in the year 1935 and the High court were asked to adopt the proportion of 2 non-brahmins to one Brahmin while recommending new candidates for appointment as acting Munsiffs. This proportion is being observed at present. The subject of communal proportion to be observed while appointing new candidates for the posts of Munsiffs was discussed in the Council on 26th November 1942 and the High Court were accordingly addres: for expression of their views in the matte: The Chief Justice has now recommended that the old rule according to which three places out of four should be allotted to the non-brahmins should be revived.

HIGH COURT OF MYSORE, BANGALORE.
10th January 1944

Dear Mr. Narayanaswami Naidu,

With reference to your letter No.P.8513 dated 18th May 1943 addressed to the Registrar, I have examined the question, ascertained the views of my colleagues and state that the High Court is in favour of reviving the old rule.

From 1921 the Government of His Highness has definitely adopted the principle of communal representation in services in all departments of Government. In a State, in fact in every Province in India, which is peopled by different communities and where, by age long tradition, caste and religious differences unconsciously influence men in power to deny equality and fair play to every one irrespective of caste or creed, the principle of communal representation is not only the just but the only principle to ensure proper administration of any State or Province based on justice.

In October 1929 I find the following rule laid down by the Government as indicated in a letter addressed by The Secretary to Government, Law Department, to the Registrar, High Court, Bangalore:

> "I am directed to request that in future nominations of candidates for being appointed as Munsiffs may kindly be made on the principle of giving three out of every four vacancies to candidates of the backward communities".

From 1929 until the advent of my learned predecessor, Sir D'Arcy Reilly the recruitment was on that basis. Between 1929 and 1934 six Non-Brahmins and 2 Brahmins were selected as Munsiffs. I have had occasion to come into contact with their work ever since my assumption of office and I find the Non-Brahmins chosen are in no way inferior to the Brahmins in service. This falsifies the assumption that larger recruitment of Non-Brahmins will necessarily lead to inefficiency in service. I yield to none in maintaining that the Judiciary should be manned by capable and efficient men and I am sure the Government or any person who may be responsible for the recruitment of the Judiciary would not appoint indifferent and incapable men. The High Court can always be trusted in making the choice and they have acted and always would act with a due sense of responsibility. Not only in the Judicial but in every department, all communities must be adequately represented and it is only then that there would be confidence in the administration of the State. It is the legitimate desire of every community to take part in the administration of the State and opportunities and facilities ought to be given to do so. It is usually said that there are not enough men, fit and qualified, available for appointment. I do not consider that this is a correct assumption in recent years. Between 1929 and 1934 the High Court did not find it difficult to choose fit and qualified Non-Brahmins and I am confident there would at no time be any difficulty in choosing fit and qualified men. Further, unless qualified candidates in different communities are encouraged, there would not be any incentive in the communities to equip themselves for the various offices by increasing numbers resorting to higher education.

On the other hand it will have a depressing effect if in spite of their education and qualifications there should be no encouragement and recognition by the State and this will result in an under-current of discontent which a just Government should avoid. Unless the old rule is revived, it would not be possible to have adequate representation of all the communities.

The reason for varying the proportion in 1935 from 3 to 1 to 2 to 1 was given as follows ~~by~~ by my learned predecessor:--

> "When the number of Non-Brahmin Munsiffs became equal to the number of Brahmins and the Government object had been achieved I proposed that only two Non-Brahmins should be appointed for every Brahmin and the Government agreed to that. They were well aware that I did not think that even the reduced proportion was right but they were not prepared to go further in what appeared to me to be the right direction in that line".

This is looking at the question from a wrong angle and overlooking the percentage of population. There was really no justification for the alteration.

It is therefore desirable that the old rule should be revived, viz. out of four candidates three should be Non-Brahmins.

Yours sincerely,

P Venkatajam anadas

Dear Sir,

I am desired to invite reference to your Confl. D.O. letter dt. 10th Jan. 1944, to Mr. C. Narayanaswami Naidu, in regard to the revival of the old rule providing for the recruitment of Munsiffs on the basis of giving three out of every four vacancies to candidates of the backward Communities.

I am to state that while it is the wish of Govt. that, with regard to recruitment of Munsiffs, the desirability of giving representation to all Communities with due regard to efficiency of Candidates should be kept in view, they feel that it is unnecessary to prescribe the rigid adoption of percentage or any specific proportions ~~being laid down by Govt.~~ in this behalf and that ~~it being~~ it might be left to the High Court to give due effect to the general policy indicated.
